M/V Celestyal Crystal sails for Volos, Greece at a distance of 134 nautical miles.

Thessaloniki is the second largest city in Greece. It is the capital of the region of Central Macedonia and the Thessaloniki regional unit. Thessaloniki is regarded not only as the cultural and entertainment capital of northern Greece but also the cultural capital of the country as a whole. The city's main theaters, run by the National Theatre of Northern Greece, which was established in 1961, include the Theater of the Society of Macedonian Studies, where the National Theater is based, the Royal Theater - the first base of the National and Forest Theater Moni Lazarist. Both amphitheatrical open-air theatres overlooking the city. Thessaloniki is renowned for its major shopping streets and lively laneways. Although Thessaloniki is not renowned for its parks and greenery throughout its urban area, where green spaces are few, it has several large open spaces around its waterfront, namely the central city gardens of Palios Zoologikos Kipos, the park of Pedion tou Areos, which also holds the city's annual floral expo; and the parks of the Nea Paralia (waterfront) that span for 3 km (2 mi) along the coast, from the White Tower to the concert hall. Because of the city's rich and diverse history, Thessaloniki houses many museums dealing with many different eras in history. Two of the city's most famous museums include the Archaeological Museum of Thessaloniki and the Museum of Byzantine Culture.
